

Artifact: Research Project about the usage of social media through internet blog pages

Course: Spanish 151 and 152

Goal: Effective Communication

Effective Communication

During my time in Spanish 151 and 152, I used social media to create a research project through an internet blog page. I wrote on the different types of genres found in various Spanish speaking countries. We were given different countries throughout the semester and we would research our topic within that country and add to our project blog. Along with the information I researched and wrote for the blog, I used pictures, color schemes and created the page that complemented the subject I was discussing. I used the tools within the Tumblr website and Effective Communication to create an informative research paper that was appealing to the reader and had reliable information.

Strengths

- A blog is an effective form of modern communication in text
- The writer uses appropriate style and language for a blog, using photos to help convey ideas
- Shows mastery of the subject at hand and explains it to the reader well

Opportunities

- Quotations are heavily used; the student could have summarized more information in their own words.
