

Artifact: Long Paper: Racial Identity

Course: ENG 275 & 251 Twofer

Goal: Information Literacy

My paper is from the "Grrl Talk" twofer for ENG 275 Women's Literature and ENG 251 Introduction to Literature. It's a good example of Information Literacy because it uses credible sources, uses proper MLA format and citations, and it uses information responsibly and effectively to make an original claim that is backed up with good evidence. I did well at using proper format, using credible sources well, and really diving deep with the claim I proposed by analyzing ideas and the reasoning behind them for this assignment.

ΦΘK Tips

Strengths:

- Several are properly cited with internal citations and a Works Cited page
- The writer successfully integrates source material into the paper, contextualizing the information
- A variety of sources are used, including peer-reviewed, academic journals

Opportunities:

- The writer at times relies too heavily on large sections of direct quotations from sources. Some of these could be paraphrased.